

FUND STRATEGY

The Fund uses a bottom-up selection process based on fundamental security analysis, and does not try to replicate a benchmark. The approach is contrarian and value oriented. The Fund seeks to find securities that are depressed in price, out of favor with investors, and trading at a substantial discount to intrinsic value. The portfolio manager emphasizes free cash flow generation, balance sheet quality, and the fundamental strength of a business franchise as attributes to identify the most attractive risk/reward propositions across all market capitalizations. The Fund focuses primarily on the securities of U.S. issuers, but frequently invests in non-U.S. issuers. The portfolio will typically contain 60-80 positions.

^The Advisor has contractually agreed to waive management fees and/or reimburse expenses in order to ensure that the Fund's expense ratio does not exceed 1.20% (excluding taxes, interest expense, acquired fund fees and expenses, or extraordinary expenses such as litigation) until at least 3/1/2027. In the absence of these fee waivers, total returns would be lower.

QUARTERLY UPDATE

- U.S. equities recovered strongly in the second quarter as inflation moderated, corporate earnings generally exceeded expectations, and enthusiasm for artificial intelligence (AI) continued to support market sentiment. While large-cap technology remained the primary driver of returns, the return contribution from the so-called Magnificent Seven was negligible compared to the rest of the S&P 500 Total Return Stock Index, suggesting broadening of participation and possibly concerns about monetization of AI data center related spending.
- The Tocqueville Fund's performance was driven by holdings in information technology, industrials, and communication services. Our strongest individual contributors were Marvell Technology, Applied Materials, Rocket Lab, Caterpillar, and Alphabet. Newmont, Boston Scientific, Netflix, Chevron, and Wheaton Precious Metals were the largest detractors. We also benefited from the capital appreciation of the investment in the special purpose vehicles that hold shares of SpaceX following the company's IPO. These positions continue to trade at a discount to the underlying shares, although we expect that discount to narrow as lock-up restrictions expire.
- During the quarter we initiated positions in GE Healthcare, Meta Platforms, and Sonoco Products. GE Healthcare's shares have been pressured by slower growth, inflationary costs, tariffs, and reduced guidance following its spin-off from General Electric. We viewed this as an attractive opportunity to acquire a market-leading medical technology business with improving strategic flexibility and long-term innovation potential. Meta had underperformed its large-cap technology peers as investors questioned the returns on its significant AI investments. We believed the market was undervaluing Meta's expanding competitive advantages and long-term earnings potential. Sonoco Products declined sharply following weaker first-quarter results and investor concerns over guidance. We viewed these issues as temporary, driven largely by weather disruptions and operational challenges, and believed the shares offered compelling value relative to normalized earnings.
- We also increased our positions in Abbott Laboratories, Netflix, and Boston Scientific after rebuilding the latter at a significantly lower valuation than where we had previously trimmed it. Conversely, we reduced Rocket Lab following its strong performance and exited Cooper, Genuine Parts, and Restaurant Brands as our assessment of their future return potential became less compelling.
